EIGHT NEW MEMBERS INDUCTED INTO THE NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY AT LONG TRAIL SCHOOL

Dorset—In a traditional surprise ceremony on Thursday, January 8, Long Trail School added eight members to its chapter of the National Honor Society. The new inductees are: senior Marah Bragdon of Cambridge, NY, senior Jessica Carr of Salem, NY, senior Tom Carroll of Manchester, senior Grace Insogna of Dorset, senior Kodi Ross of East Dorset, junior Alysha Bowen of Bennington, junior Robin Rainwalker of West Rupert, and sophomore Malindi Chesnut-Tangerman of Middletown Springs.

New National Honor Society inductees and their families: Frederick Bragdon, Joyce Brenner, Marah Bragdon, Jocelyn McDonald, Robin Rainwalker, Malindi Chesnut-Tangerman, Robin Chesnut-Tangerman, Alysha Bowen, Melissa Chesnut-Tangerman, Maureen Ross, Mark Cameron, Kodi Ross, Grace Insogna, Candace Celani, Tom Carroll, and Clare de Zengotita.

Chapter president Matt Rosenthal presided over the event, in which other members read the organization's tenets and ushered the new members to join them on stage before the entire school community. The families of new members arrived to congratulate them with the assistance of Head John H. Sutor III. Kim Rizio, English department chair and former National Honor Society advisor, delivered some remarks about the NHS symbols of a torch and an oil lamp, and the power and magic of light in our lives. 25% of students in grades 10-12 are Long Trail chapter members. Current advisors are Alicia Sonderman and Todd Smith.
