PETER AHLFELD OF LONG TRAIL SCHOOL RECEIVES NAIS FELLOWSHIP

Peter Ahlfeld of Long Trail School was recently selected as one of this year's recipients of The National Association of Independent Schools Fellowship for Aspiring School Heads.

The NAIS Fellowship for Aspiring School Heads is a one-year professional development program for individuals at NAIS member schools who wish to become heads of independent schools. Through programming, mentorship, and a school project, fellows develop their own leadership styles, learn key issues and skills, and develop a strong network. The fellowship is a critical component of NAIS's leadership development philosophy. NAIS invests in this program because it believes strongly in the importance of nurturing the next generation of independent school leaders. Equally important is the investment that fellows, their schools, and their mentors are making in their own leadership development. Head of School John Suitor commented, "We are thrilled that Peter was accepted into this highly competitive and dynamic leadership development program. The entire community joins me in congratulating Peter and celebrating his success."

Peter Ahlfeld of LTS receives prestigious NAIS award.

The Fellowship, generously funded by NAIS, Carney, Sandoe and Associates and Benedict Foundation for Independent Schools, is offered to support the professional development of exceptional and qualified individuals in independent schools who demonstrate excellence in leadership, a passion for their work, and aspiration to become a head of school. This program is unique within the independent school community and among the best leadership development programs in the country. Ahlfeld commented, "I continue to be pleased by and proud of Long Trail's interest in and commitment to the growth and education of all members of its community. I look forward to this wonderful opportunity and plan to bring my learning back to benefit our School."
